Administrative Information

Biographical Sketch

Founded in 1875 by Isaac Mayer Wise (1819—1900) under the auspices of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations (UAHC), Hebrew Union College (HUC) was established to provide comprehensive rabbinic training for future American rabbis. It is the oldest existing institution of higher Jewish learning in the world.

Isaac Mayer Wise, a rabbi who immigrated to the United States from Bohemia in 1846, recognized the need for an American school to train rabbis. Zion College, started by Wise in 1855, closed its doors soon after. His greatest obstacles were money, indifference and sectionalism. He was fortunate to befriend Henry Adler of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, who pledged a gift of $10,000 for a new school. Notably, Wise changed his vision from one of a general college supervised by Jewish authorities to a specific one for the education and training of future rabbis. Most importantly, he waited until the UAHC was established in 1873 before opening the seminary.

Hebrew Union College officially opened on Monday, October 4, 1875 in the basement of Bene Israel's Mound Street Temple. The seminary employed two teachers, Solomon Eppinger and Wise, who also acted as surrogate parent to the students, inviting them out to his farm for the Sabbath and holidays. Following two years at Mound Street Temple, the school moved to the basement rooms of Plum Street Temple.

With the school's growth, a remodeled mansion on West Sixth Street housed the College beginning in 1881, providing more space for learning and prayer. In 1913, the College moved to its present location on Clifton Avenue. Many of the buildings on this campus were designed by architect Abraham Lincoln Fechheimer.

The course of study at the College included such subjects as Bible, Hebrew and Semitic languages, Talmud, Jewish liturgy, history, homiletics, and philosophy. Hebrew Union College ordained its first group of rabbisDLIsrael Aaron, Henry Berkowitz, Joseph Krauskopf, and David PhilipsonDLin July 1883. Graduates throughout the College's history have gone on to serve in congregations, as chaplains, in Jewish organizations, and in other capacities. There have been female students at HUC since its inception; however, the first female rabbiDLSally J. PriesandDLwas not ordained until 1972.

From its beginning, HUC began acquiring books, eventually leading to the formation of a Jewish library (today known as the Klau Library). The library's collections soon included religious books, collections of Jewish music, manuscripts and materials pertaining to Jewish communities in such diverse places as England, Italy, Portugal, Constantinople, China, and elsewhere, and an array of other significant and rare materials. Jewish material culture was also collected in HUC's early days, and the Union Museum (which later became the Skirball Museum) was formed with the help of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods in 1913. Jewish religious artifacts and art were collected by the institution, including the noteworthy collections of Salli Kirchstein, Joseph Hamburger, and Louis Grossman. The museum and library's presence on HUC's campus furthered scholarship and ensured the preservation of Jewish history and culture.

Notable HUC faculty members over the years include educator and reformer Max Lilienthal, Talmud scholar Moses Mielziner, Genizah scholar Jacob Mann, historian Jacob Rader Marcus, biblical archeologist Nelson Glueck, professor of Bible Sheldon Blank, and philosopher Abraham Joshua Heschel. Heschel was one of eleven refugee scholars that HUC, under the leadership of Julian Morgenstern, rescued following the rise of Nazi Germany. Seven of the refugee scholars became permanent staff of the College.

Isaac Mayer Wise served as the first president of the College (1875—1900). Moses Mielziner (1900—1903) and Gotthard Deutsch (1903) served as interim presidents until Kaufmann Kohler (1903—1921) assumed the position. Julian Morgenstern served from 1921—1947 and Nelson Glueck from 1947 until his death in 1971. Hebrew Union College formally merged with the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York in 1950 to become Hebrew Union College—Jewish Institute of Religion (HUC-JIR).

Scope and Content

The Hebrew Union College Records, 1873-1979, trace the history of the institution from the petition to start a Jewish theological seminary in 1873 until the colleges merging with the Jewish Institute of Religion. Some financial and Board of Governors records do extend into the years after the merger, but the bulk of the records are from the Kaufmann Kohler and Julian Morgenstern presidency years, 1903-1947.
