Biographical Sketch

Richard C. Hertz was born in St. Paul, Minnesota. He received an A.B. degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1938 and was ordained as a rabbi by Hebrew Union College in 1942. In 1948 Hertz received a Ph.D. in religious education from Northwestern University.

He began his rabbinic career at North Shore Congregation Israel in Glencoe, Illinois as assistant rabbi in 1942. From 1943 until early 1946, Hertz served as a military chaplain at Fort Ord, California, earning the rank of captain. He returned to the Glencoe congregation after the war until moving on to Chicago Sinai Congregation in 1947 as assistant rabbi. In 1953 Hertz became the senior rabbi at Temple Beth El in Detroit, Michigan where he stayed for the remainder of his career. Hertz led the congregation through many difficult years in Detroit, including times of civil unrest. He was instrumental in the planning and fund-raising of the new temple in the suburb of Birmingham. Hertz was quite proud of the new temple and considered it one of his finest legacies to future generations.

Hertz was often a spokesman for the Detroit and the American Jewish community. He hosted a local television program Open Doors, appeared on national news stations and on the Voice of America and Message of Israel. Hertz wrote six books, including Prescription for a Heartache and What Counts Most in Life, and had several sermons published. He also wrote many articles, commentaries, and book reviews for prominent newspapers and magazines such as Life and Ebony.

Hertz taught at the University of Detroit, Mercy for many years. Though a Catholic university Hertz was heartened by the knowledge that he was reaching many people that knew little or nothing about Judaism. Hertz was one of the first to teach in the new field of Jewish Studies. Classes he taught include the Holocaust, Introduction to Judaism, Biblical Studies, and Modern European Jewish History. When Hertz retired as senior rabbi of Temple Beth El in 1982, an endowed chair in Jewish Studies was established in his honor at the University.

Throughout his years in Detroit Hertz became known as a leader in the fight for worldwide social justice. Hertz visited the Soviet Union in 1959 on a secret mission for President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Eisenhower was preparing for a summit with Nikita Khrushchev and wanted a true report regarding the treatment of Jews there. This trip was considered by Hertz to be one of his most important missions. Upon his return to Detroit Hertz remained actively involved in the Soviet Jewry movement.

Interfaith relations were prominent among Hertz's activities. In 1963 Hertz was the first rabbi to be received in a private audience by Pope Paul VI. In 1974, under auspices of the American Jewish Committee and the National Council of Churches, Hertz was one of twenty-four Jewish and Christian leaders who traveled to Israel and the Arab states to study refugee problems and explore peace alternatives. Hertz often took part in interfaith services, such as the traditional Thanksgiving Day services in Detroit. In 1995 he was given the Dove Award for his interfaith work by the Ecumenical Institute for Jewish-Christian Studies.

Hertz was quite active on boards and committees and was the vice president of the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit, past president of the Wranglers Ministerial Association, member of the Economic Club of Detroit, and the Michigan Advisory Committee of the United States Civil Rights Commission. He was always concerned with the conditions facing the poor, the underprivileged and minority groups. Hertz was often criticized for speaking out on issues close to his heart, though these criticisms did not sway his determination to use his prominent position to help those he saw as disenfranchised.

Hertz died in 1999. He was survived by his wife Renda and his three children, Nadine

Urban, Ruth Joyaux, and Bradford Hertz.

Scope and Content	Rabbi Richard C. Hertz was a congregational rabbi, chaplain, educator, and activist interested in a variety of social, political, and Jewish causes. His papers contain correspondence and manuscripts reflecting his professional activity as a pulpit rabbi, his work as a Jewish chaplain during World War II, his teaching on both the university and congregational level, and his involvement with Jewish communal life both locally and nationally including the Central Conference of American Rabbis, the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, and the National Association of Retired Reform Rabbis. The papers also contain materials pertaining to his activities on behalf of numerous social causes he espoused such as civil rights, fair housing, and economic justice. Included are records relating to his service on the Michigan Advisory Committee of the United States Commission on Civil Rights in the 1980's. Of special note in the collection are Hertz's records and papers associated with a trip he made to Russia in 1959 to investigate and report on the condition of Soviet Jewry. These papers consist of correspondence, a trip diary, newspaper clippings, and writings. Hertz's interest in Soviet Jewry continued after his 1959 trip, and the papers also document his work with the Central Conference of American Rabbis' Committee on Jews in the Soviet Orbit and other groups advocating for Soviet Jewry.

Series A. Sermons, 1942-1993

Extent 4.8 linear feet (12 Hollinger boxes)

Scope and Content Note Series A is a complete set of the typescript sermons of Rabbi Hertz. Rabbi Hertz's views on Jewish issues, world, national and local politics, as well as the State of Israel, social problems and current controversies can be seen through these sermons. The sermon index at the beginning of the series is a chronological listing of each sermon that includes title and date. The sermons span his entire rabbinic career from his early assistant rabbi positions in the Chicago area and his chaplaincy during World War II, to his final pulpit as senior rabbi of Temple Beth El in Detroit.

Arrangement The series is arranged chronologically.

Series C. Correspondence, 1946-1990

Extent 10 linear feet (25 Hollinger boxes)

Scope and Content Note The bulk of the papers reflect Hertz's activities as Senior Rabbi of Detroit's Temple Beth El (1953-1993), although there are some materials that deal with his two assistant rabbi positions at North Shore congregation Israel in Glencoe, Illinois (1942-1946), and Temple Sinai in Chicago (1947-1953). The files also document his participation in the Central Conference of American Rabbis, the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion Board of Alumni Overseers, the National Association of Retired Reform Rabbis, the Jewish Chautauqua Society, and various Detroit-area civic, educational and interfaith organizations.

Arrangement The series is arranged alphabetically by name of subject, correspondent, or organization.
