Biographical Sketch

The Board of Jewish Education of Greater New York is a conglomeration of several different Jewish groups that were founded in New York City beginning in 1910. Each group had essentially the same goal: to better educate the Jewish children of New York City. The earliest group was the Bureau of Education, which changed its name in 1917 to the Bureau of Jewish Education. Dr. Samson Benderly founded this group with the support of the Kehillah in 1910 in response to the Kaplan-Cronson report, which found that many Jewish children were not receiving any Jewish education, and those who were in Jewish schools were not being adequately trained. The Bureau of Jewish Education aimed to better organize and educate teachers and staff members in Jewish educational facilities, inform the Jewish parent about the status of Jewish education in New York City and encourage them to get involved to better the school systems and increase enrollment. Dr. Samson Benderly remained the head of the Bureau of Jewish Education until 1941. Sometime in 1940 or 1941 the Bureau of Jewish Education merged with the Jewish Education Committee of New York.

The Jewish Education Association was founded in 1920. The Jewish Education Association did not interfere with the schools autonomy and donated money through grants for things like tuition, record keeping, and school repairs and safety. In 1927 this group set up a board of license for Hebrew Teachers. In October of 1940 the Jewish Education Committee of New York absorbed the Jewish Education Association.

The Jewish Education Committee was originally formed in 1939 to administer a $1,000,000 donation by the Michael Friedsam Foundation for Jewish Education in New York City. Dr. Alexander Dushkin served as Executive Director and Israel Chipkin was his assistant. The Jewish Education Committee would continue to recruit children for the Jewish Schools, educate Jewish teachers, create programming for Jewish schools and help fund Jewish schools through grants and scholarships. They were responsible for things like World Over, a Children's magazine that helped explain world events and how they affected the Jewish Community, they created and maintained a library of Jewish Sources that teachers could access, and of course they donated money to schools through grants like the demonstration grants to help create new programming for schools, and help underprivileged children be able to afford tuition for schools. In 1970 the Jewish Education Committee changed its name to its current name, The Board of Jewish Education of Greater New York.

Series A. Minutes, 1920-1985

Extent 4.8 linear feet (12 Hollinger boxes)

Scope and Content Note The order of the minute records was maintained as in their numbered and labeled original binders. The minutes of the Jewish Education Association (JEA) Executive meetings run from November 1920 through 1940 and include the temporary committee of the JEA as well as the amalgamation of the JEA and the Jewish Education Committee (JEC). The minutes for the Jewish Education Committee (JEC) run from June 1939 through April 1968. The Board of Jewish Education (BJE) minutes run from September 1966 through June 1985 and include the amalgamation of the JEC and the BJE. There are also committee-meeting minutes for Ivriah (1926-1930), the Jewish Education Association Committee on Admissions (1923-1933), and the Board of Jewish Education Committee staff meeting minutes (1975-1982). The minutes are at times scattered and some dates and organizations are missing, including the Bureau of Jewish Education minutes (the organization that was founded by Dr. Benderly).

Arrangement The series is arranged by board or committee and then chronologically.

Series C. Israel S. Chipkin Correspondence Files, 1934-1959

Extent 7.6 linear feet (19 Hollinger boxes)

Scope and Content Note The files contain Chipkin's correspondence with both individuals and institutions. Chipkin served as Educational Director for the JEA and the JEC. He also served as associate director under Dr. Dushkin and appears to have been a President of the JEC at some point. However, because Chipkin rarely assigned a title with his signature on correspondence it is hard to get an exact date on when he served in these capacities.

Arrangement The series is arranged alphabetically.

Scope and Content Note Contains correspondence, sample tests, as well as actual tests and results from survey achievement tests. Students were tested on their knowledge of the Bible, Jewish History, and Hebrew. The fiscal charts in the series measure how similar schools were affected by the socioeconomic impact of its community. They examined the number enrolled, tuition intake, donations and fundraising, teacher and personnel salaries, and miscellaneous schools.

Arrangement The series is arranged alphabetically.
