Administrative Information

Biographical Sketch Jacob H. Schiff, a financier and noted communal activist and philanthropist, was born in Frankfort Am-Main, Germany in 1847 to Moses and Clara Schiff, members of a distinguished rabbinical family. Schiff completed his schooling and business training in Frankfurt before moving to America in 1865. Schiff became a naturalized citizen in 1870, although he returned to Germany for business and personal reasons from 1872 through 1875, when he became a member of the New York banking firm Kuhn, Loeb & Co. In 1885, at the age of 38, Schiff became the head of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., which was in the business of investment securities, financing government and corporate needs through the sale of bonds and shares of stock to the public. Schiff brought important European banking connections to the Kuhn, Loeb & Co. firm, such as Sir Ernest Cassel of London, Robert Fleming of Dundee (later of London), and Edouard Noetzelin of the Banque de Paris et des Pays Bas.

From his position on Wall Street, Schiff was the foremost Jewish leader in what became known as the "Schiff era," grappling with all major issues and problems of the day, including the plight of Russian Jews under the tsar, American and international anti-Semitism, care of needy Jewish immigrants, and the rise of Zionism. He also became the director of many important corporations, including the National City Bank of New York, Equitable Life Assurance Society, Wells Fargo & Company, and the Union Pacific Railroad. He is especially known for his financing and involvement with Union Pacific Railroad, as well as his extension, through Kuhn, Loeb & Co., of a critical series of loans to Japan, during the Russo-Japanese War, in 1904 and 1905. This action allowed Japan to purchase the necessary munitions to win the war against Russia. Schiff continually refused to loan money to Russia until the fall of the Tsarist regime in 1917.

Schiff grew to be one of American Jewry's top philanthropists and leaders, donating to nearly every major Jewish cause, as well as many secular American causes. He helped establish and develop Hebrew Union College, the Jewish Theological Seminary, the Jewish Division in the New York Public Library, and the American Jewish Committee.

In 1875, Schiff married Theresa Loeb. They had two children: Frieda and Mortimer. Jacob H. Schiff died in New York City on September 25, 1920.

Scope and Content The Jacob H. Schiff Papers consist mainly of Schiff's role as one of the primary bankers and philanthropists of New York City in the early twentieth century. Materials include correspondence and reports concerning Schiff's philanthropic, political, educational, and immigration-related activities, relief problems, the outbreak of World War I, the inhuman treatment of the Jews in Poland, relief for Antwerp Jews and for Jewish sufferers from the war, the struggle between Zionists and non-Zionists in Germany, the language question in Jerusalem, the founding of a Jewish Institute of Technology in Haifa, American-German relations during World War I, Jewish agricultural and industrial problems, literary, scientific, and religious questions, business matters, financial transactions with the United States Treasury Department, and the restoration of Palestine.
