Administrative Information

Biographical Sketch The Jewish Federation of Cincinnati traces its roots to the formation of the United Jewish Charities in 1896 from ten other Cincinnati based Jewish agencies. In 1910 United Jewish Charities raised over $117,000, which was the highest per capita contribution of any Jewish community in the United States.

By 1921 the board voted to change the name of the organization from United Jewish Charities to United Jewish Social Agencies. By taking this action, the organization believed that their new name would better describe the preventative and rehabilitative nature of its work and that they could better serve the community by aiding individuals who would not accept charity, but would accept social aid.

In 1958 United Jewish Social Agencies merged with Federation of Jewish and Associated Jewish Agencies, and the surviving organization kept the name Associated Jewish Agencies of Cincinnati. The three groups merged together so as to create a more streamlined operation and to reduce overhead expenditures, ultimately meaning that more money could be given to Cincinnati Jewish agencies.

In 1967 the organization went through a final major reorganization, as the Associated Jewish Agencies merged with the Jewish Welfare Fund to form the newly named Jewish Federation of Cincinnati. After this merge, the Jewish Federation became the organization for fund-raising and social planning for the Jewish community in Cincinnati.

Today the Jewish Federation of Cincinnati annually raises millions of dollars from the Cincinnati community, making up an important part of the nearly one billion dollars raised annually by the more than one hundred and eighty Jewish Federations of the North American based United Jewish Communities. The money raised by the Cincinnati Federation currently helps to support over thirty-four local Jewish agencies as well as organizations that serve the needs of Israel and World Jewry.

Scope and Content The collection consists of documents relating to the operation of the federation's business, as well as material on some of its member agencies. The Jewish Federation of Cincinnati has been in operation since 1896, and the earliest records found in the collection date to 1904.

For most of its existence the Jewish Federation of Cincinnati has served as an umbrella organization for other local Jewish groups. As a result, many of the records found in the collection focus on the interaction between the federation and these member agencies, and the majority of that interaction concerns financial requests. As expected with an organization such as the federation, most of the records found in the collection cover information on governing boards, fund-raising, and the allocation of those funds. All three of these subjects contain records dating back to at least the 1930s.

Outside of these subjects, the bulk of the records are from between 1960 and 1990. Some of the other topics covered by the records include organization information on the federation, Camp Livingston, Jewish Russian refugee resettlement, and social work projects in the Cincinnati community.

Arrangement The records are divided into nine (9) series: A. Governing Boards; B. Allocations; C. Committees and Councils; D. Organizational Materials; E. Fund Raising; F. Camp Livingston/Jewish Community Center; G. Projects and Programs; H. Nearprint; I. Photographs and Scrapbooks.

Terms of Access The collection is open for use; no restrictions apply.

Preferred Citation Footnotes and bibliographic references should refer to the Jewish Federation of Cincinnati (Cincinnati, Ohio) Records and the American Jewish Archives. A suggestion for at least the first citation is as follows:

Series F. Camp Livingston/Jewish Community Center, 1957-2000

Extent 0.72 linear feet (1.8 Hollinger boxes)

Scope and Content Note Camp Livingston is a Jewish summer camp that has served the Cincinnati community since 1920. Since the mid 1960s Camp Livingston faced many financial struggles, and as a direct consequence the camp worked various other local agencies in an effort to overcome these challenges. As a result, when appropriate, the records in this series have been arranged by the originating group for those records, (i.e. Camp Livingston - Jewish Community Center are records about Camp Livingston from the Cincinnati Jewish Community Center). Other information in the series includes: records on Camp Livingston fire of 1992, promotional materials, and reports on the status of the camp.
