Biographical Sketch

Fradle Freidenreich was born in Chicago, the daughter of a well-known Yiddish poet and a Jewish educator. As a young woman she participated in a one-year leadership development program sponsored by Habonim, the Labor Zionist Youth movement. She has worked in all areas of education, formal and informal, serving as a teacher, principal, curriculum writer, camp director, researcher, consultant, and university lecturer in Chicago, Montreal, New York, and Israel. Prior to her Aliyah in 1989, she was the Associate Director of JESNA (Jewish Education Service of North America) where she held various positions during her 19-year tenure. These positions included Director of Methods and Materials, Lay Leadership Consultant, Director of Action Research, and initiator and editor of the 18 issues of JESNA's "Annual Roundup of New Programs." In Israel, Freidenreich worked in higher education, at various teacher training colleges and at Tel Aviv University, and was the Academic Consultant and Director of International Relations at MOFET, Israel's consortium of institutions conducting teacher-training programs.

Freidenreich is a graduate of Concordia University (Montreal, QC) and National Louis University (Evanston, IL). She also attended graduate programs at Columbia and NYU in New York. She received the degree of Doctor of Pedagogy honoris causa, awarded by The Jewish Theological Seminary of America. Additional honors include Fellow of the American Jewish Archives, Fellow in Religious Education awarded by the National Association of Temple Educators and UAHC, and Moment Magazine's first Community Service Award. Freidenreich has served on the boards of many professional organizations, including the Association of Jewish Communal Service, Educators Assembly, Council of Jewish Education, and the Labor Zionist Alliance, and also on several committees of the Ministry of Education in Israel.

Fradle and her husband Barry live in Herzlia, Israel. She is the mother of three and the grandmother of three.
